Academic research reports showing the development of the Senkaku Islands

No.37 Kobi-sho [Photo of Kuba Island development in the Journal of Geography (Chigaku Zasshi)] 1900, 1901

FY2017/P8

Overview

Photographs and maps attached to a paper submitted to the Journal of Geography (Chigaku Zasshi) by Mikinosuke MIYAJIMA, who stayed on Kuba Island of the Senkaku Islands and conducted research there in 1900. These photographs show the houses built near the coast for the development of Kuba Island and albatrosses living on the island. In addition, on the map, the residential area of pioneers is marked as “Kogamura (Koga Village),” suggesting that many houses were built and a certain number of residents were living on the island at that time. The map also shows that names, such as “Umaoibaru,” “Akagawabaru,” etc., were given to some places.
