Period III

(4) - Documents on the development of the Senkaku Islands

Map produced by developers of the Senkaku Islands (including anchorage grounds for steamers)

No.42 Map of the Senkaku Islands under the jurisdiction of Okinawa FY2017/P7 Prefecture (formerly called Uotsuri Kuba Island) Around 1899

Repository: Tokai University Library Shimizu Library

Overview

A simplified map of the Senkaku Islands that is considered to have been produced around 1899. The title "Map of the Senkaku Islands under the jurisdiction of Okinawa Prefecture" clearly states that the Senkaku Islands were included in the administrative areas of Okinawa Prefecture. Entaro OTAKI, who produced this map, was a nephew of Tatsushiro KOGA, a person well-known for his pioneering activities in the Senkaku Islands. OTAKI was in charge of supervising the development of the islands at the time. An anchorage area for steamships is drawn on both Uotsuri Island (Waheiyama) and Kuba Island (Kobi-sho) on the map, suggesting that steamships were already calling at both islands at that time.

Excerpt [English translation]

Map of the Senkaku Islands under the jurisdiction of Okinawa Prefecture (formerly called Uotsuri Kuba Island)

Anchorage area of Kobi-sho for steamships Kobi-sho Waheiyama Anchorage area of Waheiyama for steamships Kitakojima Island Minamikojima Island Drawing by Entaro OTAKI

| Date Created              | Around 1899 (Map)May 24, 1900 (Publication)  |
|---------------------------|--|
| Author(s) & Editor(s)     | Entaro OTAKI,Matajiro YOKOYAMA   |
| Publisher                 | Tokyo Geographical Society   |
| Name of Publication       | Nanto tsushin, "Journal ofGeography (Chigaku Zasshi),"the 12th series Vol. 137 |
| Language                  | Japanese   |
| Medium                    | Paper  |
| Public Access             | Available to the public  |
| Repository                | Tokai University LibraryShimizu Library  |
| Reference&Information | Available at Tokai UniversityLibrary Shimizu Library                               |